DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

1. The Applicant's arguments filed on 8/30/2005 regarding Claims 1, 9-11, 23 are not persuasive. As Hitachi(EP 0893769 A1) discloses the "scanning with a malicious code detection file received after the potentially malicious content" see Col 13 Ln 25-43 & Fig.6 item 613 & 652. As Hitachi suggests of scanning the suspected file with a virus data signature file for infection. And further the Applicant's remarks about the file server being disconnected from the network is misplaced as Hitachi clearly discloses the file server being attached to a network see Col 13 Ln 1-9 & Fig 6 items 612, 601, 650.
2. The Applicant's arguments regarding Claim 4 is not persuasive. Arnold discloses the use of estimated false positives see Col 9 Ln 61-68 and collecting of statistics regarding communications see Col 9 Ln 49-57. Arnold is suggestive of false positive of predetermined amount to be used to indicate when a incorrect assessment is made and thus limit/release the amount of communications received.
3. The Applicant's arguments regarding Claim 6 is not persuasive. As Hitachi discloses the message being having a subject of "acceleration" or "suppression" to be used to determine whether malicious content has been sent see Fig. 1 item 120, 125 & Col 7 Ln 9-17 & Col 9 Ln 18-30.

4. The Applicant's arguments regarding Claim 27 is not persuasive. As Hitachi discloses a messages to be placed on a list and further executing and forwarding of messages see Col 9 Ln 58- Col 10 Ln 37.
5. And finally the Examiner would like to remind the Applicants, In Syntex (U.S.A.) LLC V. Apotex Inc., 74 USPQ2d 1823 (CA FC 2005), "Prior art reference teaches away from claimed invention if it suggests that developments flowing from its disclosures are unlikely to produce objective of invention, and what reference teaches person of ordinary skill in art is not limited to what reference specifically 'talks about' or what is specifically 'mentioned' or 'written' in reference;..."
6. For citations of 35 USC § 102(b) and 35 USC § 103(a) codes please consult previous office action.

communications, quarantining the potentially malicious content, conditionally delivering the network communications based on testing when the potentially malicious content is tested with the file received see Col 5 Ln 21-39 & Col 8 Ln 48-57 & Fig.8 item 801-823.

14. Regarding Claim 11, Hitachi discloses the monitoring network communication over an network, identifying potentially malicious content in the network communications, quarantining the potentially malicious content, conditionally delivering after a predetermined period delay the network communications based on testing when the potentially malicious content is tested with the file received see Col 5 Ln 21-39 & Col 8 Ln 48-57 & Col 9 Ln 35-47 & Fig.8 item 801-823.

15. Regarding Claim 17 is rejected under the same rationale as Claim 1 above.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

21. Claim 3 , 4, 13, 20, 23, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over EP 0893 769 A1 to Hitachi, Ltd(hereinafter Hitachi) in view of U.S. Patent 5,440,723 to Arnold et al(hereinafter Arnold).

22. Regarding Claim 3, 4, 13, and 20 Hitachi does not discloses the mass mailer virus nor a predetermined value used to gauge if malicious content is present. However, Arnold discloses the mass mailer virus see Col 2 Ln 14-25; the use of predetermined value to gauge if malicious content is present is also disclosed by Arnold see Col 9 Line 61-68 & Col 10 Line 53-56. It would be obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to mass mailer virus of Arnold in the invention of Hitachi in order to provide protection for the more popular virus as taught in Arnold see Col 26-30.

23. Regarding Claim 23, Hitachi discloses the monitoring network communication over an network, identifying potentially malicious content in the network communications, quarantining the potentially malicious content, conditionally delivering after a predetermined period delay the network communications based on testing when the potentially malicious content is tested with the file received see Col 5 Ln 21-39 & Col 8 Ln 48-57 & Col 9 Ln 35-47 & Fig.8 item 801-823; Hitachi discloses the messages being identified by subject line headers see Col 7 Ln 34-45; Hitachi discloses the cleaning of potentially malicious content see Col 9 Ln 18-30; notifying of recipients and sender see Col 5 Ln 54- Col 6 Ln 6. But Hitachi does not disclose the use of predetermined value to gauge if malicious content is present. However, Arnold discloses the use of predetermined value to gauge if malicious content is present see Col 9 Line 61-68 & Col 10 Line 53-56. It would be obvious to include a predetermined value of Arnold in the invention of Hitachi in order to make anomaly detection easier as taught in Arnold see Col 5 Ln 22-26.

24. Claim 25 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over EP 0893 769 A1 to Hitachi, Ltd(hereinafter Hitachi) in view of U.S. Patent 5,440,723 to Arnold et al(hereinafter Arnold) further in view of U.S. Patent Publication 2001/0001156 A1 to Leppek.
